ZeroResistance Studios
2019 - 2025

PR01 - PR08

Since its founding in 2019, ZeroResistance Studios has been dedicated to creating bold, faith-driven projects that bring together art, design, poetry, and technology. Each project has been an exploration of creativity without limits. An opportunity to inspire, engage, and reflect the beauty of God's creation in new and unexpected ways.

From our very first project, Genesis, to our most recent series, Temporary Blindness, the journey has been marked by collaboration, experimentation, and storytelling. Along the way, we have partnered with artists, poets, designers, and brands to produce exhibitions, installations, and cultural experiences that resonate deeply with audiences. These works are not just expressions of art; they are vessels of connection, sparking conversations about identity, community, faith, and purpose.

This booklet offers a look back at eight projects developed between 2019 and 2025. It highlights selected artworks, poetry, and designs, celebrates the many collaborators who have shaped these experiences, and documents the places where ZeroResistance Studios has shared its vision. More than a record, it is a reminder of our mission: to empower creatives to live out their calling with zero resistance, and to glorify God through every form of expression.

Genesis

Genesis was the first solo exhibition by Niyi Adeogun and the inaugural project of ZeroResistance Studios. The collection explored the emotional landscapes shaped by societal structures, translating inner struggles into bold visual expression. Each artwork served as a reflection of the human experience capturing moments of tension, vulnerability, and resilience. Through this debut, Niyi laid the foundation for a practice rooted in honesty and experimentation, using art as a lens to confront the challenges we face and the ways we navigate them.

Free

Free explored the intersection of fashion and faith, using clothing as a medium to communicate the liberating power of belief. In collaboration with Catalyst Clothing, the project produced a limited series of four wearable pieces, alongside more than eight original designs inspired by the theme of spiritual freedom. The launch took place as an in-store exhibition, where works from Genesis were displayed alongside live models wearing the new collection. As each piece was presented, the stories and meanings behind them were shared, transforming the space into both a runway and a conversation. Free expanded the language of ZeroResistance Studios, demonstrating how fashion can serve as both art and testimony.

Untitled

Untitled marked a pivotal shift for ZeroResistance Studios as the first project to integrate animation and augmented reality into its storytelling. Conceived without a set concept, the collection unfolded into a narrative that begins with the fall of mankind and closes with the redeeming love of God. Through digital collage, animation, and AR, each piece meditates on themes of brokenness, sacrifice, royalty, and wholeness, offering an immersive experience that deepened the audience's engagement. Untitled resists categorization, yet speaks with clarity about faith, identity, and the human condition, pointing back to the Creator as the ultimate source of meaning.

Lost Moments

Lost Moments is a meditation on trials, faith, and God's presence in times of uncertainty. The series combined bold digital collages and illustrations with poetry inspired by the collection, marking the first time ZeroResistance Studios incorporated written word into its practice. The artworks reflect on moments of fear, loss, and doubt while pointing to the enduring hope found in faith. Figures without sight, symbolic landscapes, and shifting seasons express the human experience of wandering through darkness in search of peace. Exhibited in April 2021, Lost Moments became a pivotal project, introducing poetry as a new dimension of storytelling and setting the stage for future multimedia explorations.

Lost Moments

*I possess no ability of my own
Once I am left alone
It's a free fall into the unknown
I think no one understands it*

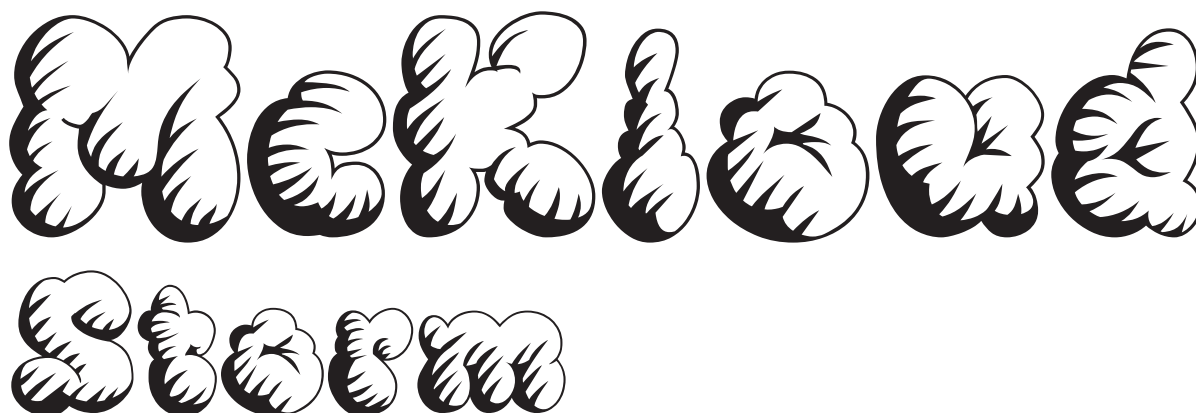

*I had no idea, that there, in plain sight
You hovered over me in pure delight
When I stumbled and I fell
Only your hands could keep me from hell*

*I count myself incredibly lucky
What a time to be made alive
From utter darkness and despair
I was blind till you became my eyes*

*Lost in space
Till you shipped me off to planet Sozo
So goes the imminent death and
In comes overwhelming life*

Through my darkest fears, pain and doubt, I see the light that guides me to the path of peace, overcoming my lost moments as I am found... through your everlasting love

Solitude

Solitude was a collaborative project between ZeroResistance Studios and Truly Motivated that used fashion as a vessel for spiritual reflection. Drawing from earlier works in Lost Moments and Untitled, the collection emphasized the peace found in God and the renewal of the mind through solitude in the Creator. The designs carried a bold, gothic-inspired visual language paired with scripture-inspired concepts, translating faith into wearable art. First envisioned in 2019 and later restructured in 2021, Solitude merged streetwear with spiritual symbolism, offering garments that not only carried aesthetic weight but also spoke to purpose and transformation. Through this collaboration, ZeroResistance continued its exploration of fashion as testimony where clothing becomes both statement and meditation.

CAYA

Come As You Are (CAYA) was created as an artistic invitation to step into God's presence without fear, shame, or the weight of past mistakes. The project spoke to the human tendency to feel unworthy or distant, reframing that narrative by reminding us of God's acceptance and love. Through mixed media, poetry, sound design, animation, and augmented reality, CAYA created an immersive experience where audiences could encounter creativity as a reflection of divine openness. By merging technology with storytelling, the project sought to break down barriers and celebrate authenticity, showing that with God, transformation and belonging are always within reach.

Come As You Are Collection

Weary & Burdened

by Feyifunmi Seth-David

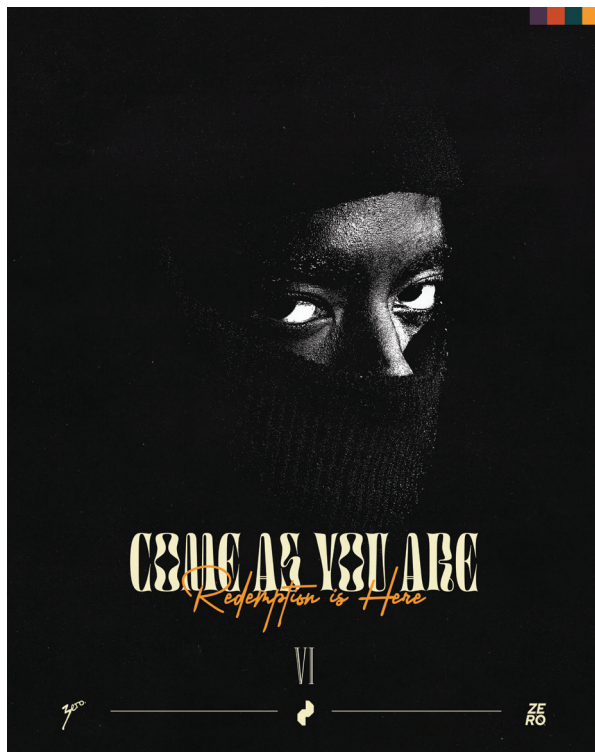

*A drop at a time
The issues of life
Fall into the vessel of my life,
Slowly it falls in
A rather harmonious beat
As it beats into the bottom
Echoing a painful melody,
One that is heard so loud
And seems to rhyme with the times,
Gradually the intensity starts to increase,
Fears, worries, unworthiness
Start to walk all over my mind
Trampling on every good thing
To ruin the good rooted in my mind,
In time the vessel of my heart
Feels heavy, unable to move
As if a boulder had been placed on it
Weighing me down,
A feeling of being sapped, which slowly burdens me.*

Come As You Are

by Feyifunmi Seth-David

*To the one riddled with questions
Not knowing what to answer
Searching agonizingly in darkness
Moving from door to door
Hoping to enter a room of light
In which you can rest in
A place that provides warmth
Lights a fire for you to prepare food
Clothes you from the thorns of your mind
Heals you from the scars of your battles fought in secret
Sets a light to your path so you can walk victoriously
Having conquered the warfare of the mind
An invitation awaits you
One that requires nothing from you
But your acceptance of the offer
It is a gift freely given
With no intent to take back
A gift that seals you forever
With no record of reproof
Only working great things inside of you
Such a gift is beautiful and surpasses mere thinking
All it takes is to receive it
So Come as you are to receive.*

Heart Cries

Heart Cries is a multifaceted project that transforms deep emotions into a vivid narrative told through digital art, poetry, fashion, and sound design. Conceived as an exploration of vulnerability and renewal, the series captures the raw, unfiltered cries of the heart, moments of struggle and triumph, doubt and resolution. Each piece serves as both a personal reflection and a universal invitation, translating complex inner emotions into experiences that audiences can see, hear, and feel. By weaving together multiple disciplines, Heart Cries created a body of work that blurred the boundaries between art forms, offering a journey through the depths of human expression and the beauty found in release.

Self Worth

by Feyifunmi Seth-David

Wake up!

A shout I heard; something just set me in motion

The words you hear when the gun sounds

Go! Go! See the target, set your focus, aim and shoot

Silence the noise, applause, praises

You have a journey out there; see it as an adventure

Enjoy the moment, and take your strides with grace

Remember to have fun, run

Let the energy go, replenish and run

Allow childlike wonder to make you ponder the purpose

Till you learn to ignore the thunder of words

Find a new high in your journey; let the Son scorch the thunder

That's where you mirror yourself and get your glow from

The aftereffect of conversations you had with him

The sea of your mind is topsy-turvy; the Son quiets it

It gets cloudy and rainy, but the Son brings warmth

Let your mind feel the gentle wind of peace, blowing away doubt

Who do you know yourself to be, the thunder or the Son

There is no void; you focused on the wrong things

Hear words with the right intention and perspective

Set your gaze on the mirror that reflects the Son

The light shines so bright it exposes the dark

So you can see yourself

See the end; take off now; it's all so clear

You know what to do, the walk is better, the paths are straight

Your mind flows with goodness, ease, freedom, and love

Stand tall and firm, and be bold in your ideas, thoughts, passions

You know you are worth it, and so does the Son

Temporary Blindness

Temporary Blindness is a conceptual art series that explores the tension between spiritual clarity and moments of disorientation. Through bold digital collages, animation, poetry, 3D elements, and augmented reality, the project reflects on what it means to trust when sight is obscured and to seek light when confronted with darkness. Figures caught between false clarity and divine truth embody the struggles of memory, experience, and perception. Guided by the mantra “The scales will fall, the light will be revealed,” the project becomes more than a collection of artworks: it is an invitation to confront uncertainty with trust, vulnerability, and renewal.

I Can Hear Your Voice but I Fail to See

by The Psalmist

The Persecutor:

I sit alone in the pain caused,

Ignorance faces me, she insults me.

"It is by your sin that you sit here."

In pain, alone?

"It is by your choices that you've been struck with blindness."

*Now dismayed, I struggle in warfare,
And the devil shouts, "Shame on me."*

I can't move, I can't do.

I sit conflicted of the power bestowed upon me,

Because really, truly, who is Me?

You say the I Am lives in me.

You say I have been given abundance.

I can't see it, I don't see the new.

All in all, your quiet is deafening.

The Advocate:

Your anger and hurt silences Me.

I come in a whisper, in peace.

I quiet the chaos and comfort.

Let me in, let me be with you.

The words I spoke to you were never false.

I have given life to you.

I care so deeply for you.

My quiet isn't hatred, isn't punishment.

My love, be still.

My love, have no fear.

The time is coming

That you will do,

But now, my dear, be still with Me!

Act of Trust Pt. 1

by Bukola Fasasi

God, do you see me?

God, do you hear me?

I am surrounded in wilderness,

Wondering when it will all turn into a fruitful field,

If this dry soil can ever become fertile again.

The voices within me have drowned out everything else.

My senses have grown dull to your presence.

I can't seem to hear you,

Yet, I refuse to be engulfed by this doubt,

Giving no room for these weeds to cloud my mind any further.

I know you are with me,

Not because I feel it.

My senses, though real,

Have proven unreliable.

I see your presence,

Not by sight, for it can be deceiving,

Showing shadows where there's light,

But with my heart,

I hold on to your unfailing word.

Though I am unable to trace your hand,

I know you carry me.

I trust in your leading.

I Was Blind, Now I See

by Feyifunmi Seth-David

*I recount my search for sight.
It was only yesterday I could not see the next.
But I counted my days,
Longed for clarity of eyes enlightened,
Felt like fighting ignorance.*

*I tried in my own strength, claimed the dark,
Attained distorted sight, felt a pull but stayed.
Wounded by the beatings of comfort and fear,
Became burdened by unease and worry.
Then came a sudden crash.*

*My facade was pulled from under,
Left bare to eat the dust.
A hand remained to lift me up, give hope.
Though hesitant, I seized it, battled trauma.
Yet assurance was loud, deafening heart quakes.*

*And so I stand in victory,
Knowing what guides and peace that sustains me.
Love that makes me bloom and flows through me.
Scales fallen, seeing light when dark knocks,
Led, clothed, shining in light.
I boldly say, I was blind, now I see.*

Over the years, ZeroResistance Studios has grown from a single exhibition into a space where art, faith, and collaboration intersect. Each project, whether through visual art, poetry, fashion, sound, or augmented reality, has been an experiment in pushing boundaries while staying true to our mission: to create without limitation and to glorify God through creativity.

This booklet is not just a record of what has been achieved between 2019 and 2025, but also a glimpse into the journey ahead. The eight projects featured here reflect the power of community, vulnerability, and storytelling, and they lay the foundation for what is to come. As we look forward, we remain committed to empowering artists, fostering collaboration, and creating work that resonates deeply, work that inspires, connects, and reminds us of the beauty of living with zero resistance.
